RE: W. Eugene Bullen CPCN- Docket No. 15-0646

On January 13, 2015, Artesian Water Company, Inc. ("AWC") filed an application with the Public Service Commission ("PSC") requesting a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity ("CPCN") to provide water service for W. Eugene Bullen. AWC was recently alerted to the fact that it only published one public notice instead of the two required notices in accordance with Rule 10.7 of the PSC's administrative regulations governing CPCNs. AWC regrets the oversight, but has moved aggressively to satisfy the publishing requirement. Certified copies of recently published public notice is attached and available for the PSC's review.

AWC notes the failure to publish the public notices was an inadvertent omission and requests that the PSC waive the publishing requirement as allowed by Rule of 1.5 of the CPCN regulations and permit the application for a CPCN for W. Eugene Bullen to proceed expeditiously. AWC submits that the grant of a waiver is in the public interest as the Company has satisfied the publishing requirement, involves service to a single parcel, and should not be unduly disruptive for customers. AWC also submits granting a waiver provides for an administratively efficient use of resources. The extension of water service, as requested by W. Eugene Bullen, will not harm or degrade AWC's ability to provide safe, reliable water service for present customers. AWC respectfully requests that the PSC accept the publication and grant a CPCN so the Company may begin to initiate water service for W. Eugene Bullen.
